We often exchange important business information or discuss many things on the phone, which exposes the internal affairs of many companies or organizations to the danger of eavesdropping. Snapshield's cutting-edge communication encryption and decryption technology can provide a completely transparent enterprise voice communication security solution to protect the important information of the enterprise from external monitoring or eavesdropping. Snapfone is a small encrypted terminal device that can perform secure point-to-point encryption of voice and fax communications transmitted through a general type of telephone line. Snapfone allows users to exchange personal or business information over the phone to ensure the security of their communications, whether in the office, at home, or when traveling.
